Faculty Newsletter
Spring 2012

"Faculty Conversations" series continues in the Spring semester.
Last semester Ann McGinley and Ruben Garcia discussed their scholarship with law students in the first two installments of the Library's "Faculty Conversations" series. Marketa Trimble and Peter Bayer have volunteered to continue the popular series this semester. If you would like to be featured in a future program, please let us know. It is a great opportunity for students and faculty to interact and discuss current legal scholarship in a comfortable setting.

Curious about your Scholarly Commons download counts?
The Library will host a brown bag discussion to demonstrate how faculty can receive statistics on their current download counts through the Scholarly Commons. Join us (and stay tuned for the actual date) to learn how to receive email updates and use the new "Author Dashboard" available through Berkeley Electronic Press. We will also answer any questions you may have about submitting your publications, abstracts, or book announcements for posting on SSRN and/or the Scholarly Commons through the new submission system at http://portal.law.unlv.edu/scholarly-commons-submissions.html.

The Scholarly Commons showcases the Nevada Law Journal and the UNLV Gaming Law Journal.
The most recent issues of the Nevada Law Journal and all issues of the UNLV Gaming Law Journal are now freely and publicly available for download through the Scholarly Commons. We hope to make all past issues of the journals available by the end of this year.

BNA Premier offers additional content and email alerts for you.
The Library has purchased access to more BNA databases in a variety of subject areas. Please contact your liaison if you would like to receive any of the following email alerts:
